Introduction

Welcome: Dynnargh

Welcome to year two of our Partnership Plan, which renews our vision that communities that feel safe and are safe for everyone who lives, works and visits Cornwall.

Year Two is about building on strong foundations, enhancing our partnerships and making a bigger difference for Cornwall.

This update reflects what you’ve told us matters most to you, the concerns you’ve raised, and the changes we are seeing across Cornwall.

Our priorities remain firmly focused on tackling both the visible anti-social behaviour that affects safety in our public spaces and the more hidden but most harmful issues, such as domestic abuse, sexual abuse and exploitation.

Working together with communities and partners to value and care for our local areas, we can create environments where crime cannot thrive and everyone plays a part in keeping Cornwall clean, welcoming and safe.

We will continue to make sure there are trusted, straightforward ways to report concerns. Residents can feel confident action will be taken, with a balance of support and enforcement.

Early prevention remains at the heart of our approach. We know that early action stops harm from escalating into crisis.

This year, we are giving greater attention to two specific areas:

- Community cohesion - valuing the unique strengths of Cornwall’s communities and working to promote cohesion. Addressing hate-related behaviours and celebrating pride in place to help communities feel more united and thrive.
- Digital resilience — challenging the social media misinformation and disinformation that can be so powerful in shaping perceptions and behaviours; and increasing our digital awareness to tackle online harms, especially to support young people.

Education in schools plays a vital role but these messages also need to reach people wherever they are in our communities. Our strong voluntary and community sector network will help us make that happen.

True safety is achieved not only by responding to crime and disorder as it happens, but by working together to address the vulnerabilities that lead to harm in the first place.

Simon Mould, Chair
Head of Resilient Communities,
Cornwall Council

Safer Cornwall: our community safety partnership

Community safety partnerships work together to protect local communities from crime and disorder and help people feel safer. Working in partnership is important, recognising that no single organisation could achieve this by themselves.

Community Safety Partnerships were first brought in under the Crime and Disorder Act 1998. Five ‘responsible authorities’ are required by law to be members. These are the police, council, fire and rescue service, the integrated care board and probation service.

Safer Cornwall works closely with the two safeguarding partnerships for adults and children, recognising the cross-cutting nature of our work. We have tri-partnership strategies to tackle exploitation, domestic abuse, sexual violence and Violence Against Women and Girls.

The partnership also has members from other organisations, including the ambulance service, local councils and the voluntary and community sector.

Together we have a shared responsibility to prevent and reduce crime, anti-social behaviour and other issues that have an impact on community safety.

We do this through our Partnership Plan.

Every year we review all of the information that we have about the issues in Cornwall. We look at what services and projects we have in place to address these issues and how successful they are. We also ask people about the issues that matter in local communities and what we could do about them.

This is used to help inform what we commit to delivering together, ensuring that we make best use of all the resources that we have.

¹Crime and Disorder Act 1998 - Section 17

The responsible authorities along with town and parish councils must also ensure that they consider the impact of their decisions on crime and disorder and take reasonable steps to prevent it in their area¹.

You'll find information on our structure and governance at the end of the plan.

Our communities feel safe and are safe for everyone who lives, works and visits here

The Plan is developed from a sound evidence base that is updated every year based on the latest data, research and feedback from partners, communities and other stakeholders. Using this approach, we identify the priorities for Safer Cornwall to address.

Crime in Cornwall: the headlines

35,000 crimes were recorded by police in Cornwall in the last 12 months, a rate of 61 crimes per 1,000 residents.

Cornwall’s crime rate is 2% lower than the national average² for similar areas. This primarily reflects very low rates of burglary and other thefts.

Recorded crime is up by 3% on last year, with two thirds of the rise accounted for by continued growth in stalking and harassment offences.

Other types of crime that have increased over the last year include violence without injury, public order offences and criminal damage.

A large part of the rise in recorded crime reflects changes made by Devon and Cornwall Police to improve recording and investigation standards, alongside improved call handling and response.

Some of the most harmful types of crime are under-reported. This includes domestic abuse, sexual violence, exploitation and hate crime. We continue to promote the support available and encourage more reporting so that further harm can be prevented.

After a long period of reduction, we have seen a rising trend in anti-social behaviour (ASB) reported to the police over the last year or so. 7,750 incidents were recorded in the last 12 months, up by 3% on last year.

Our Have Your Say Survey 2025 indicates that most residents feel safe in the area where they live – 78% feel safe during the day and 46% after dark.

Women feel less safe than men, particularly after dark. Seeing drug-related activity and ASB are the most common reasons for feeling unsafe.

Around 10% more crimes and 16% more ASB incidents are reported to police in the summer months in Cornwall. This increased demand is more prevalent in coastal towns and tourist hotspots and is predictable and planned for each year.

Source: Police recorded crime

Consistent with elsewhere in the UK, crime rates are highest in our main towns and concerns about community safety are high on the public agenda.

In the last year 54% of all crime and 60% of anti-social behaviour were reported in our town centres.

Although rural areas see less crime than our towns, the same issues cause the most harm – domestic abuse, sexual violence, drugs and alcohol – on a smaller scale. There may be added barriers to seeking help in rural areas, such as being more isolated and away from services, and fewer opportunities to tell someone safely.

² All crime and incident figures quoted in this plan are for the 12 months to September 2025, compared with the previous year. The Home Office provides national comparators for 'most similar areas' for CSPs. These areas share similar socio-economic and demographic characteristics.

OUR AIM:

Safer communities and public spaces – take positive action to reduce crime and anti-social behaviour and improve the local environment.

Problems in our town centres are complex

54% of all recorded crime takes place in our larger towns. Some towns experience persistent anti-social behaviour, shoplifting, drug use and visible vulnerability. Seeing anti-social behaviour and drug use/dealing on the street are mentioned most often by residents as reasons for feeling unsafe.

Each of our towns has its own challenges but to get the best results, we work together to balance enforcement with the right support. High visibility patrols in key areas help to address local concerns and provide public reassurance.

Shoplifting has increased UK-wide and continues to rise in Cornwall. We are working proactively with shops in the most affected areas and making it easier for them to report.

Have Your Say

We use our annual on-line survey to understand what affects communities most day-to-day and what residents think we could do to help. This helps us prioritise what we need to do to improve our services and responses for all.

In 2025, 13,000 school-age children took part in the bi-annual Right On Survey and told us about their health, school and community. This information is helping us to shape our plans to meet the needs of children and young people so they can feel and be safe in communities.

Valuing young people's voices

Our Youth Participation Framework engaged with over 300 young people, nearly half with lived experience of violence. We will explore how we can use this work more effectively across our partners in 2026.

The framework they created sets out how we can involve young people meaningfully in designing and improving services, including trusted ways to share their experiences and value their input.

OUR AIM:

Domestic abuse and sexual abuse are not tolerated – Cornwall is a place where domestic abuse and sexual abuse are not tolerated and people can live free of fear.

Domestic abuse and sexual violence

Violence against women and girls has been declared 'a national emergency' due to epidemic levels of stalking, harassment, sexual assault and domestic abuse.

Domestic abuse and sexual abuse cause the most harm in our communities, affecting women and girls but also some men and boys across Cornwall every day.

As well as affecting many people's lives in the here and now, the trauma of domestic and sexual abuse continues to have an impact long term, particularly for children who experience abuse at home.

The number of people seeking help is growing year on year and reporting of this type of crime also continues to increase. In the last year, stalking and harassment and sexual offences saw the biggest rises.

Public campaigns, education about healthy relationships and more accessible and flexible services are helping people to access support earlier.

- You can find out more about domestic abuse and sexual violence and our strategies showing how we are working together to tackle it in Cornwall.

OUR ACTIONS: Domestic abuse and sexual violence; Violence Against Women and Girls

- Through our Domestic Abuse and Sexual Violence Partnership Board ensure effective delivery of our strategies to tackle domestic abuse, sexual violence and violence against women and girls.
- Focus on prevention, children and young people, training, early intervention and behaviour change models for people engaging in abusive behaviour.
- Ensure support is provided within safe accommodation services, which is required of us by law.
- Jointly commission sustainable services that meet the needs of adults and children across Cornwall.
- Develop the Healthy Relationships Alliance to increase delivery of Healthy Relationships education across Cornwall.
- Train more people to deliver Healthy Relationships and Bystander interventions, using a 'Train the Trainer' approach.
- Prioritise a learning approach by bringing partners, experts by experience and practitioners together to improve the system for those who use it.

In Cornwall, in the last year:

- An estimated 23,200 people aged 16+ experienced domestic abuse and 10,500 people experienced a sexual assault (Crime Survey for England and Wales)
- 6,733 people were supported by our domestic abuse and sexual violence service
- 11,180 domestic abuse incidents were reported to police (66% were crimes)
- 2,018 sexual offences were reported to the police, 42% involved a child victim
- Since March 2020, 27 deaths have been formally recorded as domestic abuse related

OUR AIM:

Reduce the harms linked to drugs and alcohol – our Community Drugs Partnership reduces the harms linked to drugs and alcohol by delivering the Government’s 10-year drugs strategy, focused on local priorities.

Drug and alcohol use

There is a complex relationship between drugs, crime, health outcomes, trauma and deprivation.

The most harmful drugs are crack cocaine and heroin, synthetic drugs, high strength benzodiazepines and alcohol. We are seeing more ketamine use, particularly amongst young people, with impacts on physical and mental health.

Drug-related deaths continue to climb, both locally and nationally. Synthetic drugs are a significant concern due to the increased risk of overdose. Getting people who need it into treatment prevents harm and reduces deaths.

Our local treatment system is effective with high levels of engagement and evidenced progress in treatment. Secure housing and employment whilst in treatment are critical to successful recovery and priorities to improve.

The number of people coming out of prison and straight into treatment has improved but remains a priority. This is challenging for Cornwall, with no local prisons and residents returning from some distance away.

- Engage people leaving prison with a drug related need into treatment quickly.
- Increase positive outcomes within treatment and help more people to leave treatment successfully.
- Provide a co-ordinated response to reduce the harms of County Lines and Dangerous Drug Networks.
- Increase availability of Peer-led Recovery Communities.

OUR ACTIONS: Reducing harms linked to alcohol

- Focus on identifying and supporting chronic dependent drinkers with multiple vulnerabilities. Especially those who are not in treatment.
- Continue to improve outcomes for people in treatment.
- Reduce demands on acute health services, including hospitals.
- Use health data to improve safety in licensed premises.

In Cornwall, in the last year:

- 58 drug-related deaths were recorded (2024)
- 3,868 people were supported by our community treatment services
- An estimated 2,562 people are dependent on heroin and crack cocaine; of which 58% are in treatment
- An estimated 6,635 dependent drinkers; of which 32% are in treatment

OUR AIM:

Support people at risk of exploitation and violence – we proactively identify people at risk of exploitation and violence and put support in place to prevent further harm.

Exploitation

Exploitation takes different forms but can involve violence or threats of violence, weapons, coercion and control.

Examples in Cornwall include exploitation and trafficking for the purposes of labour, sexual exploitation and drug supply – all of these issues are types of Modern Slavery.

People who are exploited are often too afraid to tell anyone and sometimes do not recognise they are being exploited. It is a largely hidden area of criminality and harm and needs a proactive approach to uncover.

The most vulnerable people are targeted for exploitation.

We have a robust response in place for children but we are concerned about exploited adults who may be harder to identify and may ‘fall through the gaps’ in support.

Factors that affect vulnerability include adverse early-life experiences, poverty, and harmful social or community influences. Our approach centres on early identification and support to help prevent exploitation and violence in our communities over the long term.

- Read about our Serious Violence Prevention Programme, including an independent evaluation of the first two years of our work together.
- Our tri-partnership Exploitation strategy tells you more about exploitation in Cornwall and what we are doing together to identify and support people at risk of being exploited.

OUR ACTIONS: Exploitation

- Provide a rapid and effective local response when exploitation occurs, including co-ordinating help for victims.
- Provide training and campaigns to raise awareness about the signs and symptoms of exploitation and how to get help.
- Train our workforce to help them identify and respond to exploitation in their role.
- Support schools and parents to promote inclusion and a sense of safety and belonging in school.
- Promote ethical employment and supply chains.

OUR ACTIONS: Serious Violence

- Offer support to young people and their families at the earliest opportunity, targeted to those most at risk.
- Train a compassionate workforce and embed trauma and adversity informed practice.
- Promote a whole family approach that routinely considers parental trauma and adversity.
- Support schools to provide a protective environment for young people at risk and help to prevent exclusions.
- Improve our understanding of serious violence and what works to prevent it; involve and support people with lived experience of violence.

In Cornwall, in the last year:

- 2,942 violent crimes resulting in injury (excluding domestic abuse offences); 811 knife crimes (18% possession, 82% use of a knife)
- 300 Child Sexual Exploitation crimes; 44 Modern Slavery incidents
- 315 children each quarter identified by Children's Services as experiencing/ at risk of exploitation; 1 in 4 children are referred for targeted safeguarding and disruption interventions

Tackling on-line harms together

Why it's important

Risks in the online space affect us all. The pandemic pushed our work, education and social interactions on-line and, whilst this has provided opportunities for greener, more flexible lifestyles it also brings increased risks of isolation and exposure to exploitation, harassment and abuse on-line.

Social media misinformation and disinformation is a powerful force in shaping perceptions and behaviours – influencing real world events. Online radicalisation is a real and present threat and targets the most vulnerable people.

Generative AI is being used in online child sexual abuse and exploitation. It has also been linked to blackmail and bullying.

Online drug supply routes have increased and are a feature in increased availability for a broad range of illicit drugs.

Online scams are constantly evolving and trick people into giving money or access to personal information that results in significant financial loss and distress.

Risks are dynamic and criminal use of technology moves at pace. Practitioners need strong digital awareness and tools, especially when supporting young people. We recognise that this needs expertise and joint working to address effectively.

The Online Safety Act is a set of laws that aims to better protect children and adults by holding online platforms accountable for the safety of their users and the content shared on their platforms.

The Council's Trading Standards Team offer a text alert system about the latest scams and provides information and advice.

Education around online harms

Education plays a vital role in keeping everyone safer online. This can be accessed in many places and we have incorporated online elements into some of the community programmes that we deliver.

Healthy Relationships Education in schools tackles online harms as part of its programme. Awareness sessions are provided via our lead officer for preventing terrorism and radicalisation on gaming and conspiracy sites, methodologies used online and parental control software and monitoring.

Over the next year we will work across our wider network of partners to improve access to education and training, both for staff and within the community, ensuring that it provides consistent and up-to-date information. We will support staff to build their digital knowledge and share information about risks and concerns.

Tackling misinformation and disinformation

We all want to feel confident that we are getting information from trusted and reliable sources. Safer Cornwall and our partner agencies provide trusted websites and social media platforms.

We can help communities navigate complex information and have a role to play in 'debunking' misinformation.

In 2026/27 we will explore ways to do this more effectively. We will work together to join up our communications and provide simple, clear and consistent messages.

OUR AIM:

Foster compassionate communities – we work together to improve the lives of our most vulnerable residents and foster compassionate communities.

Supporting people with multiple vulnerabilities

Many people seeking help from services face complex and multiple challenges. This can include poor mental and physical health, homelessness, poverty, debt and involvement in crime. They often have a history of multiple trauma and adversity and sexual abuse in childhood is a common factor.

Due to these challenges, some of our most vulnerable residents present with behaviours that are a risk to themselves and others, like drug use, drinking and violence. This can prevent them from accessing critical services, such as housing and mental health support.

Positive outcomes are increased when people are treated with empathy and understanding and helped to access support for their needs in a holistic, co-ordinated way.

- Learn more about trauma awareness and what we are doing together to help create Compassionate Communities.
- Read about the work we're doing together to support people affected by offending and our collaborative approach to provide 'pathways out of offending.'

OUR ACTIONS: Complex Needs, Multiple Vulnerabilities

- Services work together to support people in a more co-ordinated way (My Team Around Me – Creative Solutions).
- People providing those services are confident and competent to work with all of the issues being experienced, including mental health needs and suicide prevention.
- Safe and Well Hubs bring together locally based services to work together more effectively.
- The system is enabled to deliver intensive support and creative solutions.
- Compassionate communities – everyone understands what being trauma-informed means and how to recognise and respond to the impacts of multiple trauma and adversity.

OUR ACTIONS: Reducing Reoffending

- People affected by offending are listened to and supported
- Prison leavers and people that offend have successful lives
- Alternatives to custody are increased – especially for women, and those with mental health needs

In Cornwall, in the last year:

- An estimated 3,800 children live with an adult with multiple vulnerabilities (domestic abuse, mental ill health, drug/alcohol dependency)
- 36% of people at risk/experiencing homeless have 3 or more support needs
- 61 people died by suicide in 2024; 15.0 per 100,000 population (2022-24)
- Of 2,384 adult offenders, 24.4% reoffended within 12 months
- Of 127 young people who offended, 18.9% reoffended within 12 months

OUR AIM:

Stand together against hate – we stand together against hate crime and extremist views to promote safe and inclusive communities for everyone.

Hate crime and community cohesion

Nationally, we have seen protest activity become faster, more decentralised and more disruptive. Combined with public comments, both online and in person, there has been a significant rise in community tensions, in some cases leading to targeted intimidation and hate.

Like other parts of the UK, we have seen an intensification of hostilities towards refugees and asylum seekers; this is a significant risk for their safe placement as part of the national resettlement programme. We have also seen increased hostility towards the trans community.

Although more hate crime is being reported, fear of repercussions acts as a barrier to reporting, alongside a lack of confidence in public services to respond.

Alongside strengthening our response, we are taking positive action to build community connections, such as the new Faith Covenant, multi-cultural activities in Cornwall Libraries and the We Say No To Hate campaign.

- Read about our Prevent Strategy and what we are doing locally to counter violent extremism.

OUR ACTIONS: Build resilience and unity

- Support residents, businesses and partners to stand together and act against intolerance, violence and hate.
- Embrace our role in eliminating discrimination and harassment, leading by example and challenging unacceptable language and behaviour.
- Raise awareness about the signs of radicalisation and extremist views through training and education.

OUR ACTIONS: Respond to Community Tensions

- Collect and share more information about community risks so that we understand them better.
- Ensure we are prepared to take co-ordinated and swift action if community tensions escalate, working jointly with local partners and the Peninsula Local Resilience Forum.
- Help venues to implement measures that strengthen public safety and protect people from harm.

OUR ACTIONS: Provide the right support

- Work with community partners to expand the choice of trusted routes to report hate incidents and get support.
- Support people at risk of being radicalised through appropriate and effective interventions.

APPENDICES

A: Partnership structure and governance

Community Safety Partnerships (CSPs) were first mandated under the Crime and Disorder Act 1998³. Each CSP is made up of five responsible authorities – Police, Local Authority, Fire and Rescue Service, NHS Integrated Care Board and Probation Service – working with a broad range of other partners.

A full list of members is provided in our Constitution and Terms of Reference, published on our website.

CSPs have 6 main statutory duties:

1. Annual strategic assessment - to identify priorities based on evidence of risk and need, and set objectives to address them
2. Three year Partnership Plan, refreshed annually, to co-ordinate activities to address the priorities
3. Monitor delivery against our objectives and drive good performance
4. Develop and deliver a strategy to reduce reoffending
5. Commission reviews of domestic abuse related deaths, and share and act on the learning
6. Consult and engage with our communities and use this to inform our strategies and plans

New legislation and national guidance came to local areas in 2021, 2022 and 2023, each requiring robust governance and multi-agency arrangements to deliver. In Cornwall, all of these requirements are delivered through Safer Cornwall and specialist sub-groups.

- Ensure the provision of statutory domestic abuse support⁴ within safe accommodation services through a Domestic Abuse Local Partnership Board - to support local needs assessments, strategies and oversee effective delivery.
- Provide robust governance for the Serious Violence Duty⁵ and ensure that tackling serious violence is an explicit priority⁶ for the CSP; undertake a strategic needs assessment and develop a strategy to address local priorities.
- Ensure effective delivery of the government's 10-year drugs strategy⁷ through a local Combating Drugs Partnership; agree priorities through a strategic needs assessment, develop and deliver a local drug strategy and action plan (for which the Safer Cornwall Chair is the Senior Responsible Officer).

Safer Cornwall is accountable to the Home Office. Local scrutiny is provided by the Cornwall Council's Overview and Scrutiny Committee⁸.

Under current legislation CSPs and Police and Crime Commissioners must demonstrate that they act in co-operation with each other and should have regard for each other's priorities within their respective plans. The Police and Crime Plan is published here.

Working with other partnerships
Alongside working closely with the two safeguarding partnerships for adults and children in Cornwall, we also share a key aim⁹ with both the Health and Wellbeing Board and the Integrated Care Partnership to reduce health inequalities, by tackling underlying harms like drug and alcohol use, domestic abuse and violence.

Safer Cornwall works with all the neighbouring community safety partnerships in Devon and the Isles of Scilly¹⁰. Together we produce a Peninsula Strategic Assessment, with the aim of identifying the areas where co-ordinating our resources would be most effective.

This work supports the Office of the Police and Crime Commissioner and other partners that cover Devon as well as Cornwall (and beyond) such as the probation service and police.

Partnership Structure
Safer Cornwall's structure has 3 tiers:

- The Strategic Board sets the priorities and is ultimately responsible for the Partnership delivering against its duties.
- The Management Group provides overall co-ordination and problem-solving, manages performance and ensures that any issues are referred to the Board for action.
- Thematic sub-groups co-ordinate and deliver action plans under the key themes, reporting to Management Group and the Board on performance and risk.
